The CHIP Network is Ready to Serve The Congenital Heart Professionals' Community

By Gary Webb, MD; Robert Campbell, MD

The community of congenital heart professionals is large and is growing. The community has many needs and offers many opportunities. One long-standing problem has to do with how best to communicate within our large family. The July 2010 issue of Congenital Cardiology Today (<http://tinyurl.com/l7b827o>) carried an article addressing the need for a possible North American Pediatric Cardiology Organization. The profession of congenital heart disease care (pediatric and adult) has no single identified pediatric cardiac organization, and likewise no singular source of information to contact healthcare and administrative professionals. To this point, many individuals and organizations maintain more proprietary e-mail lists of colleagues, members of various organizations, registrants of courses, and so on. Many of the addresses are out-of-date, and hard to keep current. All of them are incomplete.

Against this backdrop, a number of individuals and groups have been discussing the establishment of the Congenital Heart Professionals Communications Network, also known as "The CHIP Network."

The purpose of The Network is to create a single global list of CHD-interested people in order to: provide a mechanism through which events/activities, research opportunities, and employment opportunities may be shared; provide a mechanism for partner organizations to communicate with all or selected members of the community; bring the pediatric and adult congenital heart communities into closer contact; provide a forum for increased education and awareness of providers about developments in the included professions; and provide a forum for surveys about critical issues in the profession.

The management committee includes representatives of the partner organizations, and presently includes: Drs. Robert Shaddy, Jeff Jacobs, Curt Daniels, Robert Campbell, Gary Webb, and Ms. Maryanne Kessel, Executive Director of the Herma Heart Center in Milwaukee. The management committee will decide how best to manage these communications and how best to build and maintain the list. Funding to establish and maintain the website is being provided by Cincinnati Children's Hospital Heart Institute.

"The purpose of The Network is to create a single global list of CHD-interested people in order to: better provide a forum for increased education and awareness of providers about developments in the included professions; provide a forum for surveys about critical issues in the profession...."

To date, partner organizations committing to contribute to this list include the annual CHOP course, the Adult Congenital Heart Association, the annual North American ACHD course, Pediatric Interventional Cardiac Symposium (PICS), the World Congress of Pediatric Cardiology and Cardiac Surgery, the International Society for Adult Congenital Heart Disease, and Congenital Cardiology Today. The management committee invites the participation of other organizations who will wish to communicate with all or some of the congenital heart professionals on this list. Please contact Dr. Gary Webb (gary.webb@cchmc.org) to ask that your organization's or institution's name be added to the list of partner organizations.

The list will be inclusive of anyone and everyone who considers themselves a congenital heart provider or administrator, including cardiologists, cardiac surgeons, cardiac care associates, trainees, administrators, social workers, psychologists and mental health professionals, researchers/scientists, transition medicine specialists, and others (have we left anybody out?).

The CHIP Network's address is: www.chipnetwork.org. Go ahead. Try it out! It's open for business!

Registration will take less than a minute. All participants will always have the option of unsubscribing. Participants' information will not be released to anyone else. Participants will receive appropriate messages that they request with the assistance of the management committee. No one will contact participants directly using the information they provide on the website.

This is a global list. This will permit communications in languages other than English, and language preferences can be recorded in your profile.

We would encourage you to circulate this information to any of your colleagues, inviting them to participate in the CHIP Network. We want to be able to reach as many members of the congenital heart professionals' community as possible. We are obviously very excited to launch this initiative! With your support, it should greatly improve communications within the growing congenital heart community throughout the world.

Technologies to Manage
Congenital Heart Disease

Every Step of the Way

Melody® Transcatheter Pulmonary Valve
Ensemble® Transcatheter Valve Delivery System

Indications: The Melody TPV is indicated for use in a dysfunctional Right Ventricular outflow Tract (RVOT) conduit (≥ 16 mm in diameter when originally implanted) that is either regurgitant ($\geq$ moderate) or stenotic (mean RVOT gradient ≥ 35 mm Hg)

Contraindications: None known.

Warnings/Precautions/Side Effects:

- DO NOT implant in the aortic or mitral position.
- DO NOT use if patient's anatomy precludes introduction of the valve, if the venous anatomy cannot accommodate a 22-Fr size introducer, or if there is significant obstruction of the central veins.
- DO NOT use if there are clinical or biological signs of infection including active endocarditis.
- Assessment of the coronary artery anatomy for the risk of coronary artery compression should be performed in all patients prior to deployment of the TPV.
- To minimize the risk of conduit rupture, do not use a balloon with a diameter greater than 110% of the nominal diameter (original implant size) of the conduit for pre-dilation of the intended site of deployment, or for deployment of the TPV.
- The potential for stent fracture should be considered in all patients who undergo TPV placement. Radiographic assessment of the stent with chest radiography or fluoroscopy should be included in the routine postoperative evaluation of patients who receive a TPV.
- If a stent fracture is detected, continued monitoring of the stent should be performed in conjunction with clinically appropriate hemodynamic assessment. In patients with stent fracture and significant associated RVOT obstruction or regurgitation, reintervention should be considered in accordance with usual clinical practice.

Potential procedural complications that may result from implantation of the Melody device include: rupture of the RVOT conduit, compression of a coronary artery, perforation of a major blood vessel, embolization or migration of the device, perforation of a heart chamber, arrhythmias, allergic reaction to contrast media, cerebrovascular events (TIA, CVA), infection/sepsis, fever, hematoma, radiation-induced erythema, and pain at the catheterization site.

Potential device-related adverse events that may occur following device implantation include: stent fracture resulting in recurrent obstruction, endocarditis, embolization or migration of the device, valvular dysfunction (stenosis or regurgitation), paravalvular leak, valvular thrombosis, pulmonary thromboembolism, and hemolysis.

For additional information, please refer to the Instructions for Use provided with the product or call Medtronic at 1-800-328-2518 and/or consult Medtronic's website at www.medtronic.com.

Humanitarian Device. Authorized by Federal law (USA) for use in patients with a regurgitant or stenotic Right Ventricular Outflow Tract (RVOT) conduit (≥ 16 mm in diameter when originally implanted). The effectiveness of this system for this use has not been demonstrated.
